INTRODUCTION

The Wing family in America goes back to Matthew Wing (1548/9-1614), of Banbury, England, and his wife, Mary (d. 1613). They are buried in the churchyard at Banbury. Their son, John (1548-1630), took his degree and was ordained at Oxford University. He spent most of his professional life in Germany and Holland as a leading Puritan minister. He married Deborah Bachelor, daughter of Stephen Bachelor, who was one of the non-conforming ministers ousted from his pastorate during the reign of James I. Stephen became interested in plans to establish Puritan refuges in America. In 1630 he gathered his family in London to emigrate. Although his son-in-law, John, died in that year, his now-widowed daughter, Deborah, with four of her five children, came with her father to Massachusetts Bay Colony on the "William and Francis" in 1632. Her youngest son, Matthew, eventually returned to England with Stephen, her father. She and her other sons, John, Daniel, and Stephen, remained in the New World. By 1637, they had moved to Sandwich, on Cape Cod, where stands the earliest of their houses, now a Wing Family museum. John, the oldest son, moved eastward in the 1650s. The Indians sold him land extending from the southern to the northern shores of the Cape, and he settled at what now is Brewster, Harwich Township, Barnstable County. He was born in 1613, married twice, and died in 1699. In the genealogical records of the Wing Family, he is identified as JOHN^{1}, that is, one of the first generation of descendants of Deborah and Reverend John Wing.*

The generational line proceeds through JOHN^{1} and ELIZABETH (Dillingham) Wing, JOHN^{2} (abt. 1658-1683) and MARY (Bangs?) Wing, JOHN^{3} (1680-1758) and REBECCA (Freeman Vickery) Wing, DAVID^{4} (1732-1806) and TEMPERANCE (Kelley) Wing, to JOHN^{5} and HANNAH (Foster) Wing. (Rebecca Freeman Vickery, the wife of JOHN^{3}, was a descendant of Elder William Brewster, a leader of the Puritan community that emigrated to Plymouth on the "Mayflower" in 1620.) For two centuries, this branch of the Wing family remained on Cape Cod. Then the children of JOHN^{5} and HANNAH Wing began journeys that in one generation scattered them into New York, Michigan, and California. CHARLOTTE^{6}, the oldest daughter, raised her family in western New York and Michigan. JOSIAH^{6} and GEORGE^{6} both became sea captains before leaving Massachusetts. In the 1830s, they emigrated first into western New York, then into Michigan. There GEORGE remained, becoming a farmer and Methodist minister. JOSIAH returned to Cape Cod in 1847 and again went to sea. In the winter of 1849-50, he sailed the bark "Diantha" to San Francisco. His family joined him two years later. He established a wharf on the Sacramento River at what is now Suisun City, California, and is considered to be the town's founder. JOHN[6] and BETSY[6], the next children of JOHN[5] and HANNAH[5] Wing, died at an early age, but their youngest daughters, BETSY[6] and HANNAH[6], married in Brewster. In the 1840s they moved south and thenceforth lived in Brooklyn, New York.

Part I of this genealogical record concerns JOSIAH and his descendants, many of whom have helped us gather information. We gratefully acknowledge their assistance. Part II, which begins on page 59, presents Josiah's brothers and sisters.

It is also possible that she accompanied her children when they left Brewster. If so, she probably died in New York or Michigan. See also Frank M. Phoebe L. Wing[7] *

i. PHOEBE L.[7] (Josiah[6], John[5], David[4], John[3-1], John[A], Matthew[B]), b. Brewster, MA, January 17, 1824; d. prob. NY, in early childhood. Phoebe's sister, Martha Ann (see below), believed herself to be the second of nine children, preceded only by Charlotte, rather than by both Charlotte and Phoebe. The 1830 census return for the family is correct as to the number of female children, assuming that Phoebe, Charlotte, and Martha Ann—all born before 1830—were alive. The Brewster record of the children of Josiah and Phoebe Wing includes Phoebe as well as Emila, born in late December, 1831. As the entry must have been posted after Emila's birth, it thus can be inferred that Phoebe lived until at least 1832. Martha Ann's memory of childhood days on Cape Cod probably went back to her third or fourth year of age, that is, to about 1833 or 1834, after which the Wings lived in New York. So if she did not recall Phoebe, it seems likely that Phoebe died between 1832 and 1834. Five years later, in 1839, the first daughter of Josiah Wing's second marriage received the name of Phoebe L., presumably in memory of her deceased half-sister. All female children reported in the 1840 census for the family are accounted for by those who are known to have reached adulthood. The count does not have room for Phoebe or Emila. Evidence still exists that all members of the family were in touch with each other as long as they lived, but they left no traces or recollections of Phoebe or Emila, nor of any descendants who can be traced to them.[1]

* The first five of Josiah Wing's children were born to Phoebe Lincoln Wing, his first wife.

ii. DELLA (ADELLA)[9] (Dalton/Wood), b. prob. Madison Township, Lenawee Co., MI, May 20, 1885, dtr. of Lewis Edgar Dalton and Ella A. Cross (adopted by William Justice and Lida Wood by June 9, 1900).[1] Lena, her adoptive sister, identified her as a cousin, according to Janice Robinson, Lena's granddaughter. Census returns show that Clara, a sister of Della's father, Lewis Edgar Dalton, lived for a time with the family of Lena's mother, Lida [Williams]

The latter census return shows her father to be a widower; Della is not living with him. Her present-day descendants, the Tolfords, were aware only of her Dalton ancestry, and not of her adoption by the Woods. However, she is identified as Della Wood in newspapers of the period and her sons attended Wood funerals.

Wood. At least in that sense, if not by blood or legal kinship, Lewis Dalton and Lida Williams were brother and sister. Thus, their daughters, Della and Lena, would be considered cousins. The family tie between the Daltons and the Williamses has not, however, been traced or documented for earlier generations. Emila Wing[7]

iv. EMILA[7] (Josiah[6], John[5], David[4], John[3-1], John[A], Matthew[B]), b. Brewster, MA, December 1, 1831; d. prob. in early childhood before 1840, prob. Monroe or Orleans Co., NY.[1] No trace of Emila has been found among revelant Massachusetts, New York, Michigan, or California records, nor among the memorabilia and reminiscences of surviving members of the family. Charlotte Wing Freeman, her aunt, gave Wing names to seven of her twelve children. Her daughter Emeline Abigail was born on October 1, 1834, which suggests that Emila—similarly named—may have died before that date. Emila's father named his third daughter of his second marriage Emma, born June 21, 1842; the similarity of names also suggests Emila's earlier death. The 1840 census count of young females in the family leaves no room for Emila nor her sister, Phoebe, who also is believed to have died before then. (See entry on Phoebe L. Wing, above).

[2]Eugene Wing, b. NY, abt. 1863, and Nettie Wing, b. CA, abt. 1866, are listed with Wallace and Emma Wing in the 1880 San Francisco census. Their ages and birth places strongly suggest they were Emma's children by a previous marriage. Neither they nor Emma appear afterward in any records of Wallace C. Wing. Archie, son of Eldridge Palmer and Alice Bertillion, is listed in USC, 1880, CA, Trinity Co., Lewiston, Roll 85, ED 150, p. 1. He probably remained with his father after Eldridge and Alice were divorced. Carol Jensen, a descendant of Alice, has a photo of "Baby Ralph" Palmer: prob. b. and d. IL, in 1870s (unless he was the child called Archie in 1880).

Shiloh Cemetery, Windsor, CA, dtr. of William Foreman and Susan MacLaughlin. Children (first marriage): 1. Frederick[8]; (second marriage): 2. Wallace; 3. Olive; 4. Wallace Roy.[1]

i. FREDERICK[8] (Chillingsworth[7], Josiah[6], John[5], David[4], John[3-1], John[A], Matthew[B]), b. CA (San Joaquin Co.?), abt 1871. No information as to place and date of death, marriage, or children, if any. Not listed as an heir by his brother, Wallace and cousin, Lewis Hilborn, who were administrators of his father's estate (1918-1921), although the 1880 census includes him in Chillingsworth's family as a son. He has not been identified in the censuses of 1900, 1910, or 1920. A niece, Patricia (Wing) Reese (see above), recalls that "Uncle Fred" stayed with the family in Oakland for a short time in the late 1920s or early 1930s. No trace of him there or elsewere has been discovered, however, and those of his generation who might recall him either are deceased or do not remember him. Some reports state that he died at Ventura, CA, at age 60, or in Ontario, OR or CA, in the 1940s, but these reports are not confirmed by the public records of these locations.[2]

ii. WALLACE[8] (Chillingsworth[7], Josiah[6], John[5], David[4], John[3-1], John[A], Matthew[B]), b. and d. in infancy, prob. near Stockton, CA, December, 1878, prob. twin of Olive.[3]

John and Robert Montgomery Clarke

In 1832, Josiah Wing assumed the legal guardianship of John and Robert Montgomery Clarke, nephews of his wife, Phoebe (Lincoln) Wing, and sons of his good friend, Captain John Clarke (1794-1830). Their mother, Rebecca (Lincoln) Clarke, had died in 1828, and their father died at sea in 1830. Although Captain Clarke remarried before his death, his second wife chose not to keep her stepsons with her, and she herself later remarried. The Clarke boys grew up in the Wing family, accompanying it from Brewster, MA, into New York and Michigan. John, the older, remained in Hillsdale County, MI, although he made a least three overland journeys to California, driving herds of cattle. Robert, the younger, settled with the Wings in Suisun, CA. After failure of his lumber business in the 1870s, he moved to Santa Paula, Ventura Co., CA, where he died. The Clarke ancestry goes back to John Clarke, First Mate of the Mayflower.[1]

Introduction

A brief summary of the background of the Wing Family in America appears at the outset of Part I, which treats Josiah[6], the second child of John[5] and Hannah (Foster) Wing. Part II provides the genealogies of Josiah's siblings and their descendants up to, approximately, the present century. The account of these members of the family is incomplete. However, we hope that it will provide a foundation on which the descendants of Charlotte[6], George[6], Betsy[6], and Hannah[6] Wing can build.

Charlotte[6] Wing

Note: Two children are buried in Oak Hill Cemetery, Battle Creek, MI, near the graves of Josiah and Julia Freeman, but probably are not those of their children. They are: EUGENE J., "son of J.W. and Mary Freeman", b. abt. 1855, d. January 15, 1865, age 11; prob. s. of John and Mary Freeman (see p. 57 above); and GEORGE, b. abt. 1881, d. October 2, 1891, age 10, poss. s. of EMELINE and ALMON PRESTON (see p. 64 above) (OTIS and GEORGE FREEMAN had sons named George, but Otis had moved to Nebraska long before 1891 and George had died in 1878. As to OTIS' children (see p. 67 above), Owl, 1907, p. 595, lists a "BENJAMIN F." just before "FRANK B." OTIS' census returns for relevant decades do not, in fact, show any child named BENJAMIN, and the chronology of births leaves no room for him between FRANK and FRANK'S nearest siblings. It is surmised, therefore, that BENJAMIN F. and FRANKLIN B. are the same person, a child first named BENJAMIN FRANKLIN whose name was reversed either by his parents or by himself, to the confusion of the Owl's reporter. The 1900 census reports that OTIS and ESTHER had had twelve children, three of whom had died by that date.

[1]Note: Josiah, the second child of John and Hannah Wing, is the subject of Part I of this work. Charlotte, Josiah, and George left Cape Cod in the 1830s. For several years, they lived very close to each other in Monroe and Ontario counties, New York. After they parted, Charlotte and George were in Michigan most of the rest of their lives. Perhaps they exchanged visits, for their homes in Battle Creek and Clio, Michigan, were within one hundred miles of each other. Possibly, too, Josiah's wife, Mercy, and daughter, Laura, visited them early in the 1870s on one of the two occasions when they "took the cars" east from California. The younger sisters, Betsy and Hannah, moved to Brooklyn, NY, late in the 1840s. There Josiah's daughter, Laura, lived with Betsy for almost two decades. Her cousin, Elizabeth, a daughter of Hannah, came to California at about the time Laura rejoined her parents in the late 1860s. (Elizabeth returned to New York after a few years.) So there is no doubt that, through Mercy and Laura, Josiah remained in touch with his sisters and brother after the family left New England.

viii. LEONARD, (Berry)[7] (Hannah [Berry][6], John[5], David[4], John[3-1], John[A], Matthew[B]), b. Brooklyn, NY, May-June, 1854; d. Brooklyn, NY, September 12, 1854, bur. Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn, NY.[1]

Note: The records of The Evergreen Cemetery list the burial of a stillborn child, Annah Berry, May 4, 1865, among the graves for the Berry families. On May 2, at the same address in Brooklyn, Hannah Berry, senior, died; she probably was buried two days later—that is, on the same date as the stillborn Anna was buried. As Hannah's husband had been dead for eighteen months and she herself was over 49 years old, the infant could not have been hers. In October of the same year, a seven-day-old girl also named Annah Berry died at the address then occupied by Judah (junior) and Bridget Berry. Biologically, Bridget Berry could not have born a child in October, 1865, if an earlier infant had been stillborn in May, 1865. It seems most probable, then, that the listing of Annah Berry, stillborn in May, 1865, simply involved a recording or copying error. The entry should have concerned Hannah herself. Although cemetery records do not specifically and correctly identify Hannah Berry, her gravestone is in the cemetery and her death certificate is among the municipal records of Brooklyn. The identity of the stillborn infant, Annah, thus cannot be ascertained if, in fact, there was such an infant. It is possible that she might have been one of children of Judah (junior) and Bridget Berry, stillborn at a different date and at a different location in Brooklyn than the cemetery reported.
